

MRS. TALMAGE IS DEAD.

Wife of the Distinguished Divine
Passes Away at Danville, N. Y.

SINCE THE LAST FIRE

Has Suffered From Nervous Prostration
Since the Burning of the Brooklyn Tabernacle and Never Recovered Fully
From the Shock Sustained.

DANVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Mrs. T. De Witt Talmage died here at 5:30 a. m. Since the burning of the Brooklyn tabernacle Mrs. Talmage has suffered from nervous prostration, and she has never fully recovered from the shock sustained then. The fire broke out while the doctor was holding his usual Sunday reception, and a large number of parishioners and visitors were in the church when the fire broke out. They all made good their escape, but Dr. Talmage went back into the burning edifice for something he had left behind. During his absence Mrs. Talmage, who, with other members of the family, was outside awaiting his re-appearance, became greatly excited and alarmed for the doctor's safety. As soon as she was informed that he was all right she broke down completely, her overwrought nerves being unequal for such a strain. Her doctors suggested a European tour to build up her failing health. She was accompanied to Europe by Miss Maud and Daisy Talmage. While in Rome she became ill with Roman fever, and accompanied by one of her physicians, she returned home. While staying at the family's summer residence, near East Hampton, L. I., she appeared to improve, and her friends had hopes for her speedy recovery.

This was not to be, however, as she soon had a relapse of the spells of exhaustion and nervous prostration. The sufferer was removed to the Danville sanitarium about a year ago with Miss Daisy Talmage as her constant companion.

While Dr. Talmage was absent on a lecturing tour in the west last week he received a telegram summoning him to his wife's bedside. He at once cancelled all his engagements and hastened back to find that there was very little hope for the patient's recovery, and he remained with her until the end came this morning.

The deceased was the second wife of Dr. Talmage. His first wife was drowned while boating in 1872, leaving a daughter, Miss Jessie, and a son, who has since died. Within two years after the doctor married Miss Susie Whittemore of Brooklyn. She became the mother of five children, Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage, Mrs. Doris, Mrs. Margaret, Miss Maud and Daisy Talmage.

The funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock, Tuesday, Aug. 6, in Brooklyn.

OGALLALA, Neb., Aug. 5.—The members of the Alfalfa Irrigation district, located in the northwestern part of Keith county, have filed a petition in the district court, under section 59 of the district irrigation law, praying the court to examine and determine whether the organization and voting of bonds by said district are legal and valid. An answer will be filed by the taxpayers, objecting to the law as unconstitutional and raising all doubtful points in the law. This is the first district organized under the new law and the first case to be submitted to the courts. Judge Neville has called a special term of the district court at this place to hear and determine the case, and it will then go to the supreme court for a hearing at the first meeting in September.

This case is started for the purpose of having a thorough test made as to the constitutionality of the law. Several irrigation districts have been organized in western Nebraska, and are now waiting for the law to be determined in order that they can sell their securities and commence the construction of their ditches. Intending purchasers of these securities are also interested, as the case will settle the validity of irrigation bonds.
